Chapter 1 by Ashley

Fiona is a very pretty girl. She is 10 years old. She likes the color blue. She hates boys. She hates art class. She loves all the other classes. She always does her homework. She is a nice girl.

Chapter 2 by _Unknown_

Fiona is 14 now. She was one of the last people in her grade to get a phone. She has made some new friends but doesn't know if it is right. They are trouble makers and are trying to make her do bad things. They say that they think it is fun to be a bit savage, but Fiona isn't sure if she agrees. What will happen next?

Chapter 3 by Emily

Fiona is 16 now, but she feels much older. Maybe it was the new blouse, perhaps. The one that made all the boys stare at her, drew in their fingers to her shoulder, their breath to her ear. It made her feel alive in all the ways her friends never good, and besides, could she even call them friends? Alice invested herself with a man twice her age, Hanna with her pills and her potions and that spacey New Age music she claimed could only be understood once knee deep in a bottle of her mom's whisky. Fiona didn't like them, she didn't want them, and she certainly didn't
